"Say Technologies, a Robinhood company, is an enabler of extraordinary shareholder interactions for other industry leaders and an optimal channel to support us on the distribution of our digital dividend coupons to HLBZ shareholders. The collaboration with Say Technologies will allow us to notify our shareholders of the range of services we provide, including micro-mobility, ride-sharing, car rentals, food delivery, and early access and purchasing of retail vehicles," said Helbiz CEO Salvatore Palella.

Helbiz is committed to driving innovation and shaping the future, and this collaboration with Say Technologies is an important step in recognizing and rewarding current shareholders for their support and formalizing share count.

"We are really excited to be delivering a deeper channel of engagement for Helbiz to connect with their shareholders," said Say Technologies Co-Founder, Zach Hascoe. "Retail shareholders are some of the most passionate investors, and we're looking forward to delivering this channel of access and transparency."
