Leasys and Helbiz together for sustainable mobility

- Leasys, a leader in rental services, and Helbiz, a leader in micro-mobility, announce a partnership that will see the two companies work together to re-design the future of sustainable mobility
- The partnership is part of a financial agreement for an innovative project related to sustainable mobility, which will include vehicles without registration papers in the reference market
- Through the consolidation of the Helbiz business model of sharing electric scooters, the agreement with Leasys allows its micro-mobility fleet financing to be optimized in an innovative manner.

Milan, June 16, 2021 - A collaboration is born between the international company Helbiz, a global leader in micro-mobility that is the business combination target of GreenVision Acquisition Corp. (Nasdaq: GRNV), which recently acquired MiMoto Smart Mobility S.r.l, the Italian leader in the scooter sharing market, alongside Leasys, a subsidiary of FCA Bank, a leader in long-term rental and mobility in Italy and one of the main operators in Europe.

The Leasys relationship supports the micro-mobility of Helbiz, and aims to become increasingly integrated. Following the closing of the acquisition which is expected to be completed in August 2021, Helbiz will be listed on the Nasdaq in New York. As a result, Helbiz will become the first micro-mobility company to be listed globally.

The new partnership is destined to revolutionize the future of urban mobility, and not just from an operational point of view. This collaboration falls within an extremely innovative financial agreement.

Helbiz and Leasys have signed an agreement that activates a line of credit for Helbiz micro-mobility sharing.

It offers a consolidation of the business model of Helbiz's target market, is marked by rapid yet solid growth thanks to the structuring of solid processes as regards regulations, economic flows and supporting legislation. This has allowed access to an innovative source of financing through a dedicated line of credit, which speaks to the progressive success of the micro-mobility model of Helbiz, supported both by the increase in the number of licenses in cities and the strong growth of its fleet.

The basis of this collaboration is a shared vision of urban inter-mobility that is innovative and environmentally friendly. In addition to being united by the financial agreement, Leasys and Helbiz will work together on a project entirely dedicated to electric mobility that will aim to weave a common thread between the rental experience and the last mile of the electric scooter.

The companies are linked by their significant experience in the field of mobility and a commitment to promote increasingly sustainable and flexible mobility, which also supports the public service.

Alberto Grippo, CEO of Leasys SpA, added, “The partnership just signed with Helbiz is part of a series of strategic initiatives in the process of promotion of sustainable mobility initiated by Leasys, traveling a completely electric path together with the use of scooters, combining the needs of urban mobility with respect for the environment.”

Giulio Profumo, Chief Financial Officer of Helbiz Inc., said, “To meet Helbiz’s expansion needs, we have created a new asset-backed financing formula with Leasys for the purchase of last generation scooters. Although we are still in the building stage, our business model is proving to be on the route to profitability, and allows us to better plan both the purchase of new fleets of vehicles and their amortization period. With this line of credit, we can accelerate our growth both geographically and in terms of services, and make payments in installments over time.”

Specializing in rental solutions at 360 degrees “from a minute to a lifetime”, Leasys, a subsidiary of FCA Bank, has confirmed itself as the market leader in Italy in long-term rental in 2019 and 2020, and amongst the biggest operators in Europe. With the gradual reopening of the country, its goal is to give new life to the sector by offering integrated and efficient mobility that is best able to adapt to the needs of individuals, freelancers and companies.

Helbiz is the first company in Italy to invest heavily in micro-electric mobility. With business seeing continuous expansion and growth, Helbiz is on track to double its volumes in the coming years at both national and international levels. Helbiz is present in Italy with its fully electric sharing service in approximately 20 cities, including Rome, Milan and Turin, in addition to many in the United States, including Washington, D.C., Alexandria, Arlington and Miami. Helbiz has an entire proprietary IT department, and is the only company to have a full fleet of electric scooters, electric bicycles and electric mopeds.
